Ancient Monuments & Landmarks | Exploring History

Thermae is the ancient name of Loutraki derived from goddess "Thermia Artemis", the protector goddess of therapeutic mineral waters. The city has been a cradle of Ancient Greek civilization, since its central position combined with its famous medicinal and natural mineral waters, acclaimed Thermae as the most famous spa resort in Ancient Greece. Thermae was also the favorite city of the Olympian Gods, Apollon and Hera, who had both their temples in the city. In the entrance of the city, the remainings of the Ancient Diolkos, constructed by the Corinthian tyrant, Periandros, around 600 B.C., survive until today. Historical revelations continue in Ag. Theodoroi in the ruins of Ancient Krommyon, associated in mythology with Theseus, who killed Phaea, the monstrous wild sow, there on his way from Troezen to Athens.

Mediterranean Sports championships and tournaments. Loutraki is also a repeated host of the "Rally of Gods", the WRC Acropolis Rally.

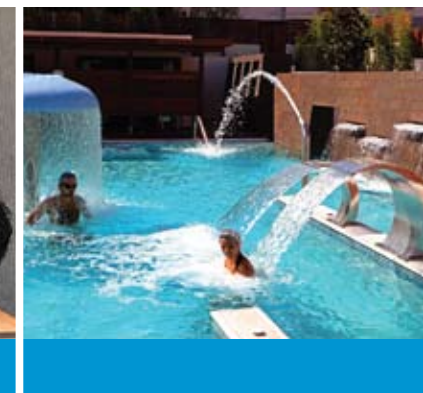

Natural Thermal Spa & Balneology | Revitalizing Wellness

The water derived from the Loutraki natural thermal springs was characterized as “The Water of Life” since antiquity. The geothermal springs derive from many faults of the coastal area in a 750 m-wide zone. The natural spring hot waters, at the bottom of Mount Geraneia, are discharged from a great mineral depth. During its journey towards the surface, the pure spring water is being filtered through porous layers and it is so greatly enriched with precious trace elements, salts and minerals, that its healing properties make it a very strong health ally. The modern Loutraki Thermal Spa is an impressive establishment where visitors enjoy balneology, spa treatments and wellness sessions in a luxurious environment.

Conferences & Incentives | Breaking the Ice
